Part 2: Pick one of the below scenes and imagine you have been transported back in time to that place. Describe a day in your life.

It's 1864. You're 17 years old and striking out on your own. When President Lincoln signed the Homestead Act two years ago, you left your home and family in Pennsylvania and headed west. You decided to settle in Montana in hopes of making a home and perhaps even finding some gold and striking it rich! These are exciting times, but also tough times; it seems like you are constantly making repairs on your tar paper shack and you're worried about the coming winter. Describe a typical day in your life.

It's 1917 and your family are sheep ranchers. During the summer months, you and your two older siblings must take a band of 1000 sheep into the mountains so they have enough food for grazing. Describe your journey.

It's 1934 and your family owns a rural filling station outside of Yellowstone National Park. Times are tough because of the Great Depression, but by selling fuel to tourists on their way to the Park, your family is making ends meet. Your nearest neighbors are a half day's horseback ride away, but you meet all sorts of interesting people by helping them fuel their automobiles. Describe a typical busy day in your life.
